of Reform:

This volume provides a history of the Scandinavian Reformation from its evangelical beginning in the 1520s to its institutionalization by the mid seventeenth century when Lutheran territorial churches were established in the Nordic countries. It reassesses the role of the Catholic Church in trying to halt the Reformation and traces the evangelical movements in their social context focusing on the relationship among church, state and society in post-Reformation Scandinavia. The product of a team of Scandinavian scholars, this book is a compact and well-integrated introduction to the Reformation in Scandinavia.

Choice The contributors to the volume are well-established Nordic scholars within the fields of history and the social sciences.
