In the late fifteenth century votive panel paintings or tavolette votive began to accumulate around reliquary shrines and miracle working images throughout Italy. Although often dismissed as popular art of little aesthetic consequence more than 1 500 panels from the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries are extant a testimony to their ubiquity and importance in religious practice. Humble in both their materiality and style they represent donors in prayer and supplicant. Jacobs writes beautifully through her nuanced investigation of early modern and current terminology she has greatly expanded our understanding of the complex dynamic relationships of word image and piety by means of these little known tavolette and
